Our Sites

We invite you and your scout group to visit our sites and participate in Coastal Heritage Society's exciting field trip programs! We operate six unique museums and historic sites in Savannah, GA: Savannah History Museum & Battlefield Memorial Park, Georgia State Railroad Museum, Savannah Children's Museum, Old Fort Jackson, Pin Point Heritage Museum and Harper Fowlkes House.

Savannah History Museum is housed in the former Central of Georgia Railway passenger shed, a National Historic Landmark built in the 1860s and 1870s. Coastal Heritage Society took over operation of Savannah History Museum in 1990. The museum is home to more than 10,000 artifacts-- the largest collection of artifacts in the entire coastal community. Battlefield Memorial Park, adjacent to the History Museum, commemorates the site where 800 soldiers were either killed or wounded on October 9th, 1779 in one of the deadliest battles of the American Revolution. More than 8,000 troops, from what are now eight modern countries, clashed for control of the city of Savannah. The combined French and American force failed to extract it from British control.

Georgia State Railroad Museum is the site of the former Central of Georgia Railroad Savannah Repair Shops, and a vibrant part of Savannah's industrial heritage. Construction began on the site in 1851 and the majority of buildings were completed by 1855. The Civil War brought damage and destruction to the Central of Georgia Railroad, but soon after the war the Central was back in full operation. It was reorganized in 1895 and renamed Central of Georgia Railway. The Central used this site until 1963.

Savannah Children's Museum Savannah Children's Museum is a one-acre, two-level outdoor educational space featuring over a dozen interactive exhibits and activities designed to offer an open exploration experience and to expand the imaginations of children ages 18 months to 10 years. The museum was unveiled as an adaptive reuse project in 2012 in the historic Central of Georgia Railway Carpentry Shop.

Old Fort Jackson, named after Revolutionary War hero James Jackson, was built to defend the port of Savannah from attack via the river. In 1777 & 1778, there was an earthen artillery battery located on the site. During the administration of President Thomas Jefferson, the United States began building a series of coastal fortifications, including Fort Jackson, to provide for the defense of major rivers and harbors along the east coast.

Pin Point Heritage Museum is located just off the Diamond Causeway in the recently restored A.S. Varn & Son Oyster and Crab Factory on the Moon River. The Museum shares the story of the Pin Point Community founded in 1890 by freed slaves, many from Ossabaw Island. Pin Point Heritage Museum, with its more than 3,000 square feet of exhibition space, artifacts and interactive displays, helps to tell the story of the history, traditions, language, spiritual life, and culture of the community.

Harper Fowlkes House is an 1842 Greek Revival mansion located on Orleans Square in downtown Savannah. Alida Harper Fowlkes left her home to the Society of the Cincinnati in the State of Georgia to be used as their state headquarters. She wanted future generations to see the lifestyle of the mid-1800s, including the home's richly furnished interiors, important oil portraits, original architectural details and period antiques.

All of our programs are based on the Georgia Performance Standards of Excellence and are age- and grade-specific. Each offers an engaging, interactive and fun educational experience for visitors of all ages. If you have any special needs, please speak with one of us. With sufficient notice, we can tailor our programs to meet the needs of your group. We hope to see you soon!
